Ask Globe Trotter

Dear Globe Trotter,

My roommate is from Vietnam, and she has invited me to her parents' home for a typical Vietnamese dinner. I'm excited, but nervous about not knowing the correct etiquette. Can you give me some tips?

Sincerely,
Hungry to Learn

Dear Hungry to Learn,

It's great that you want to be culturally literate! Here are some things to keep in mind at dinner:

- It's polite to take a small gift to your hosts, such as sweets, tea, or coffee. Flowers are an acceptable gift. But don't take white ones—white is the color of death.
- It's customary to take off your shoes before entering someone's home.
- People traditionally bow when they are introduced, but some people also shake hands. It's best to wait and see what the other person does.

- If you have trouble with chopsticks, mention your lack of skill and ask for a fork.
- Use two hands to pass a plate to someone or to accept one.
- If you are offered a second or third portion of food, you must accept it. (If you don't, it might be considered offensive.)
- Lastly, if you don't know what to do, it's OK to ask.

Sincerely,
Globe Trotter

	Yes	No
Example: Had "Hungry to Learn" been culturally literate about Vietnam before she wrote to Globe Trotter?	()	(✓)
